As you are aware, this site has a very nice template for some time now (which I think has improved since the early days of this site). What I'm wondering is, why isn't it used more often? I'm not trying to start a flame war, but I guess it's a bit off topic here and I'm sure the people in charge know that. I noticed that the theme of this site is not perfectly used by everybody and from time to time I find my posts are shoved down below others or I have to scroll way down just to find my comment. Well, this is a pointless waste of time, isn't it? I understand that some changes to the theme were needed because of the redesign of the other sections of this site but the template used looks to me like the same template as you had in the past. The same template that has been corrected from time to time. Maybe it's just me and I'm in the minority but I would expect to see a more simple theme for posting comments here. It's kinda hard to find what you want when the forums are packed with different fonts, different colours and different sizes of texts. So I guess we're all in the same boat here, aren't we? At least we are all still here. Anyway, I don't want to stir up any trouble but I would really appreciate a simpler theme for comments, I mean a theme that cuts down on the overlap and the misleading colours as much as possible. I've noticed there was a recent trouble with the RSS feed,
