Estrogenic activities of some substituted 3,17beta-estradiol. Several substituted estrogens were synthesized and tested for estrogenic activities in different standard assays: uterotrophic effect in immature female rats, corneal ulcer induction in mature female rats, and induction of alkaline phosphatase in MCF-7 human breast cancer cells. All tested compounds exhibited estrogenic activity in at least one of the assays. The most potent compound was 6-piperidin-1-yl-17beta-estradiol (15), which was equipotent to diethylstilbestrol. The other selective estrogen receptor modulators, like selective agonist, selective antagonist, partial agonist and compound 29, exhibited in most cases no estrogenic activity in any of the assays used in this work. her," he said of his daughter. "It was very, very hard for me to watch her struggle as a child, and then watching her struggle as a wife. I just try to help her the best I can." "I'm just not being fair to myself and my daughter. I know how hard it is to come here and be taken care of, and how hard it is to leave. But then again, I'm not in her position. I'm not in her shoes. I'm not the parent. I want her to feel like she's not alone in this. I want her to realize that there are other people in this world who are struggling to make it and who need help as well." There were several nights when he would come by the house that his daughter was living in after she was ejected from her Los Gatos home, at the behest of his estranged wife, only to have her kicked out, too, for being too loud or too noisy. That was tough, too, for Noren to hear. "But I'm just not being fair to myself and my daughter. I know how hard it is to come here and be taken care of, and how hard it is to leave. Q: Why my Spring HttpReponse.ok(....) return HttpStatus.OK.INTERNAL_ERROR I have a Spring MVC application that return a JsonObject in response to a HTTP GET. It return all right. However, if I change the content-type of the response to application/octet-stream and I send some data as a body, it returns HttpStatus.OK.INTERNAL_ERROR What happens exactly when Spring treat HttpStatus.OK.INTERNAL_ERROR? A: I don't know what you consider "catch all" but the catch all is to consider as an error all of status code below 400, as by definition of HTTP status codes all response codes with status code not in range 1..400 are considered an error. In most error states those, e.g. 4xx, refer to errors in request - client or server, while in the following codes you might have a different situation. So 400 is reserved for errors of level 2 - the server is unable to process the request and usually even when sending an HTML page that might be considered a general problem. See also this response that says that 400 is reserved for errors: HTTP Status Code 400 – Bad Request The 400 (Bad Request) status code indicates that the server cannot or will not process the request due to something that is perceived to be a client error (e.g., malformed request syntax, invalid request message framing, or deceptive request message routing). 500 is reserved for errors of level 5 - server not able to process the request due to something specific to its configuration. And for example for WebSocket failures it is not so much a server error but rather a network condition that caused the error. 200..299 for client and 300..399 for server side errors are maybe more widely known. Also if you get a 400 in the catch-all case, it usually means that you sent a request that is syntactically invalid - you can also get a 400 for e.g. for you request when you have two dots in the method declaration instead of one - for example a POST and you use a header attribute that is not valid for that type of request. See also 5.1.1 of the HTTP/1.1 specification on that point. It is actually 4xx because HttpStatus.OK.INTERNAL_ERROR has no
